Adam N. Love is a partner in the Trusts & Estates and Estate, Trust & Probate Litigation Practice Groups, as well as the Business/Corporate, Commercial Litigation, and Real Estate Practice Groups. Throughout his legal career, Adam has handled disputes involving corporate law, insurance matters, real estate and land, torts, partnerships, shareholder, contract, and estates. He is known for keeping clients informed at every stage and translating complex legal issues into clear, actionable guidance and for helping clients approach disputes with a practical, business-oriented perspective.

His combined corporate, transactional, and litigation experience enables him to guide clients through high-stakes disputes, complex transactions, and the day-to-day legal demands of operating a business. When disputes arise, Adam relies on his extensive corporate, real estate, and estate background to diligently represent his clients in litigation. He regularly represents clients in federal and state courts and in arbitration.

Business/Corporate

Adam serves as de facto in-house counsel for small and mid-size companies and collaborates closely with in-house teams at larger organizations. He advises business owners on a full range of corporate matters, including contract negotiation and drafting, joint ventures, buy-sell agreements, corporate formation, capital raises, governance, and employment issues. Clients rely on him as a strategic partner who understands their operations and proactively identifies areas of potential risk. His litigation background informs his approach, allowing him to anticipate and mitigate common sources of dispute.

Commercial Litigation

When disputes arise, Adam is able to rely on his extensive corporate, real estate, and estate background to diligently represent his clients in litigation. As the former head of litigation at Marks DiPalermo Wilson PLLC, a New York-based law firm, Adam has handled disputes involving corporate law, insurance matters, real estate and land, torts, partnerships, shareholder, contract, and estates.

Real Estate

Adam also represents investors and operating companies in the acquisition, sale, and leasing of property across New York, New Jersey, and the United States, working with local counsel as needed. He has significant experience with capital raises, financing structures, and the investment and development of real estate assets. He also advises on the formation of joint ventures and regularly assists clients with commercial leasing, financing, and refinancing matters.

Trusts & Estates/Estate, Trust & Probate Litigation

Drawing on his corporate, real estate and litigation experience, Adam works closely with trusts, estates, and their advisors to help establish proper succession planning and, if needed, protect parties' interests in estate litigation.
