Certified by the Supreme Court of New Jersey as a Civil Trial Attorney, Christopher Musmanno has a strong reputation in personal injury litigation. His years of trial experience before a variety of courts have given him familiarity with any type of personal injury matter, from emotional traumas and product liabilities to automobile accidents and workplace cases. Christopher is equally adept at representing both plaintiffs and defendants in workers' compensation, medical malpractice, employment discrimination, and insurance fraud cases. In addition to being a skilled litigator, he is adept at discovering important evidence and secure expert witnesses – both of which are instrumental in winning complex cases.

While many attorneys in his field focus strictly on the facts of the case, Christopher takes a more personal approach. He is extremely aggressive in pursuing justice but also helps protect his clients from potential challenges from insurance companies and mounting medical bills. He knows that most people in these situations are under unprecedented stress, sometimes suffering severe accident-related pain which makes it difficult for them to fully participate in or contribute to the necessary legal process. Christopher takes as much time as needed to advise his clients and assist them in getting proper medical care. His goal is to obtain the highest possible award while making the litigation process as painless and seamless as possible – a tall order in most cases. Christopher prides himself on giving his clients what he deems the most important element of an attorney/client relationship - open and constant communication.
