Employment Attorneys for Employers

On the management side, we assist employers with employee policy and compliance issues. Our employment law attorneys:

- Represent management accused of improper employment practices;
- Draft employee manuals; and
- Develop training programs to educate management and their employees as to their respective legal responsibilities and duties.

Employment Lawyers for Employees

We also help employees who need compensation when injured on-the-job. Additionally, a New Jersey employment lawyer specializing in discrimination and harassment issues can vigorously represent employees who fall victim to discrimination or harassment in the workplace.

One of the keys to a successful employer-employee relationship is to have sound and fair employment policies that you consistently enforce. We provide employment law contract drafting and review, as well as advice on the Family Medical Leave Act (FMLA), New Jersey Family Leave Act (FLA) and related issues. We also conduct employment compliance and sensitivity training seminars.

Assisting both plaintiff-employees and management and ownership with employment issues gives us a unique perspective. Our litigation experience has taught us how and where the employer-employee relationship can become mutually beneficial and productive or breakdown irretrievably. We use this knowledge to help our employer clients prevent the problems that we see in the workplace every day.
