NJ Personal Injury Lawyers Experienced with Products Liability

Products Liability Laws govern the liability of manufacturers, wholesalers, distributors, and vendors for damages caused by dangerous or defective products. These laws were enacted to help protect consumers from dangerous products while holding manufacturers, distributors, and retailers responsible for selling and distributing products that are dangerous or defective. Products liability cases involve injuries that occur when using a product that has been negligently designed or manufactured. In addition, an injury may result because there are insufficient or no warnings provided with the product.

Our attorneys are well versed in the complexities of Products Liability law and have delivered record settlements for our clients.
